And he has just lost to a man who had just beaten No. 1 opponent of the year John Lineker. It is an interesting way to talk about the deadliest man in the sport right now. And potentially the most dangerous, too, given there are still 36 hours to go in the year. Floyd Mayweather is in pole position as the deadliest fighter in the sport right now. But with one-dimensional boxers being brutally exposed and things getting ugly in other weight classes, the focus on Mayweather intensifies as the years roll by. Ringside, who last spoke to Mayweather four years ago, is looking at the past and future of the greatest of all time. He examines the past which could explain why Mayweather, who is the highest-paid athlete in the world, is the most polarizing sportsman of our time. And with time running out on Mayweather, he asks what lies ahead for the boxing champion. As he prepares to face Marcos Maidana in Las Vegas on Saturday night, Mayweather says: "You have to understand. I can beat John Lineker. I can beat Lineker, Lineker, Lineker, Lineker, Lineker. Lineker, Lineker, Lineker, Lineker. "I'm not saying I don't understand a champion that has a one-dimensional game plan. That's the game plan we had." Floyd Mayweather (right) has done it once, and will probably do it again. Maidana is the only man who can unseat Mayweather, and he is a good fighter but he is hardly a match for Mayweather. Don't forget that Mayweather is one of the most professional boxers of all time. Yes, he probably would have beat Wladimir Klitschko when he fought him in 2012
